WEDDED MONDAY EVE.

Popular Senator and Charming Young Widow Re-enter Matrimony.

Senator Frank Rives and Mrs. Sara McDaniel Richards went to Nashville on the Dixie Flyer Monday morning and were married at five o'clock that afternoon. About six o'clock Senator Rives called up a friend over the phone and broke the news, which came as a complete surprise. The couple had been attached to each other for some months. Last Thursday evening at the Athenaeum banquet, among the guests was a couple whose wedding day had been set for Tuesday, but it was not known that there was still another couple present who would be married before Tuesday.

The Nashville American gave this account of the interesting event:

"Society in Hopkinsville, Ky., joins that of Nashville in being very much interested in the marriage of Mrs. Sara McDaniel Richards and State Senator Frank Rives, which occurred quietly Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Morrison in the Vauxhall. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Charles W. Byrd, pastor of West End Church, in the presence of a few friends. The bride was very handsome in a white and black tailored gown. She is a very attractive young woman, beautiful and graceful in manner. Mr. Rives is a prominent lawyer of Kentucky, and is the present State Senator from the Christian-Hopkins district, having represented it for two terms. After several days at the Maxwell House, Mr. and Mrs. Rives will return to Hopkinsville, which will be their home."

Sensor Rives has been a prominent lawyer at the local bar since he began practice in 1896. He was master commissioner for four years and made the race for county attorney in 1901, coming in a few votes of overcoming the big Republican majority. He was elected State Senator in 1905 and at once became a prominent leader. During the last session he championed the Rives unit bill, the prohibition measure that played a part in the election of Wm. O. Bradley as U. S. Senator.

Sensor Rives was a widower whose first wife died several years ago. His present bride was Miss Sallie McDaniel and her former husband was the late J. Bailey Richards, a prominent merchant. She is a sister of Dr. Robt. F. McDaniel and of Miss Katie McDaniel, of the faculty of South Kentucky College.

They returned home yesterday.

OWNED UP TO PART IN THE HOLLOWELL RAID

Says Stanford Hall, of Some of the Defendants in Big Damage Suit at Paducah.

ATTENDED A MEETING,
He Declares, Where Evidence to Be Used For Defense Was Prepared.

Paducah, Ky., May 11.—The workings of the inner circle of the "Night Riders" was laid bare this morning by Sanford Hall, of Lyon county, who testified in the Hollowell case. The bearing on the case on trial, the Hollowells' damage suit, was the claim that all of the defendants were members of the night riders' band, and that Hall had been present at meetings at Nabbs school-house after the suits had been brought, and it was decided to prepare such testimony as was necessary in the defense. Other meetings were arranged, said Hall, at which it was said that attorneys were to be present and assist in the preparation of the evidence.

Hall said that he talked with Wallace and Firm Oliver, Will and John Turner and James Hyde about the raid on Hollowell's home. They told him they were there, and that all the defendants were present, including George and Marion Brown, Sid Smith and Buck Tandy. He said John Turner said he would have been there, but he had gone to Orvin Nabbs's to get some guns for Buck Tandy. He said he did not join the night riders until after the raid, but he saw them at Milt Oliver's house, and he was informed afterward that they were there for the purpose of raiding Robert Hollowell's home.

Jury Quickly Secured.

A few minutes only were consumed in securing a jury to try the suit of Robert Hollowell for $50,000 damages against his brother and cousin, John E. and John W. Hollowell, and twenty six of his neighbors in Caldwell county for an alleged night rider outrage. All the jurors are from Jefferson and Bullitt counties, nearly 200 miles from the scene of the trouble, May 2, 1907. The jury are:

James A. Nichols, Geo. D. Lee, Fred Baker and N. B. Wigington, of Louisville; H. I. Smyser, of Jefferson county; Logan Hedges, B. Y. Pope, of Okolona; L. W. Nichols, of Union, Bullitt county; J. T. Collins, of Shepherdsville; Thos. S. Allison, of Anchorage, James Newman, of Lebanon Junction, and Chas. H. Parker, of Highland Park. At 10 o'clock John G. Miller, Sr., attorney for the plaintiff, commenced stating his case to the jury, going into detail concerning the whipping of Mr. Hollowell for the purpose of driving him from the county to prevent his testifying about the raid on Princeton.

Capt. Chapman, with a detail of company H, Third Regiment, National Guard, is stationed here today.

Official in Trouble

S. L. Hall, who joined the night riders to obtain evidence against them, is a witness in the Hollowell case. A warrant was issued for his arrest in Lyon county, and Detective Will Baker, of the city force, attempted to serve the warrant on him in the Federal court-room.

Judge Evans then ordered Baker's arrest for contempt and Baker left without his prisoner.

NEGRO TO WHIP.

New Phase of Humiliation by Tennessee Night Riders.

Nashville, Tenn., May 11.—Four night riders, Jim Yarbrough, Bud

Brandon, John Darnell and Marion Thompson, were arrested at Tiptonville yesterday. Darnell confessed and implicated Yarbrough and Brandon. The arrest grew out of disorders Saturday night. The riders had decided to whip John Burnette, a merchant, and they had a negro in charge who was to apply the lash. The negro escaped and gave the scheme away.

GEORGE GRAY OF DELAWARE.

In the list of presidential possibilities the name of George Gray is being widely discussed. His public record shows that he was graduated from Princeton college in the class of 1860 and took a course in Harvard Law school, after which he practiced law in Delaware. He was attorney general of Delaware 1878-85, United States senator from that state 1885-90, leader of the Democratic senators against the force bill and against an excessively high protective tariff, member of the Canadian joint high commission 1898 and of the Spanish peace commission in the same year, chairman of the anthracite strike commission 1902-3, chairman of the Alabama coal strike commission 1903 and has been sole arbitrator in several other labor disputes. He is now a member of the international court of arbitration appointed in accordance with the peace conference at The Hague and judge of the United States court of appeals for the first circuit.

ANARCHIST SHEETS

To Be Barred From the U.S.
Mails.

Washington, May 9.—Approval of the recent action of President Roosevelt in denying the mails to an alleged anarchist publication of Paterson, N. J., will find expression in the postoffice appropriation bill, the consideration of which by the Senate Committee on Postoffices and Postroads was completed to-day, if an amendment suggested by that committee passes, which proposes to amend the law on the subject of suppressing immoral periodicals. The proposed addition reads as follows: "And the term 'immoral' within the intention of this section shall include matter of a character tending to incite arson, murder or assassination, and the Postmaster General is hereby authorized to exclude from the second-class mailing privileges any anarchistic publication which contains matter that suggests, advocates or approves the abolition, overthrow or destruction of any and all governments, or of the commission of arson, murder or assassination."

ADMIRAL EVANS'

FAREWELL

Will Close His Long Sea Career on the Flagship Connecticut.

San Francisco, May 8.—Rear Admiral Evans, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, closes his long sea career today when he goes aboard his flagship, the Connecticut, for the last time, to be present at the review of the combined Atlantic and Pacific fleets by Secretary of the Navy Metcalf. The view begins at 10 o'clock this morning when the little gunboat Yorktown, with the Secretary's white anchored flag at the main truck, and with the civilian head of the navy and a party of guests on board, puts out from the Oakland shore to make a tour up and down the four lines of anchored battleships, armored cruisers and torpedo boat destroyers.

BUSYBODIES V.S. TRUTH.

Here Are The Facts—Judge For Yourself.

Busybodies who see in success only falsity, who, without making an effort to inform themselves, hastily cry offense against honesty and truth—seem to forget that a slur against Dr. Pierce's well-known non-alcoholic family remedies is a slur against the intelligence of thousands of clear-thinking American women who know they have been helped and cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is not a "patent medicine" in any sense—it is simply the favorite remedy which Dr. Pierce used in an extended practice for the treatment of the diseases peculiar to women.

Truth and Influence. A name for honesty and square dealing is better than great riches. Dr. H. V. Pierce has always been known to speak the truth—his famous medicines are founded on the rock of public approval and have thousands of truthful testimonials as to their ability to cure diseases for which they are recommended.

True Speaking. No man ever lived who was not a customer through telling the truth. In the long run Dr. Pierce believes the truth will prevail and he is therefore not afraid to make public his formula.

Valuable Trade Secrets. The ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription are given to the public. He vindicates the excellence and harmless character of his "Prescription" by letting selling women know just what they are taking when they buy this reliable tonic and service for the diseases and illnesses peculiar to females. These ingredients are combined in just the right proportion to make an ideal remedy, without the use of a particle of alcohol, and they are as follows: Golden Seal root, Black Cohosh root, Tincture root, Blue Cohosh root, Lady's Slipper root, with chemically pure glycerine of proper strength for extracting and preserving the active medicinal principles residing in the above native roots.

No Alcohol Used. Dr. Pierce never believed it advisable to use alcohol in the preparation of either his "Favorite Prescription" for weak women, or his "Medical Discovery," the well-known alterative tonic, which is in no way used as a remedy for indigestion, torpid liver, bad blood and kindred ailments. Over forty years ago he discovered that chemically pure glycerine is a far better solvent of most of the active principles residing in our native medicinal plants when used as a proper and sustained temperature than is alcohol; and, furthermore, he found that a glyceric extract kept much better than an alcoholic one, and that the glycerine possessed intrinsic remedial value, being demulcent, nutritive and an effective anti-ferment. Although costing somewhat more, Dr. Pierce procures that glyceric medicinal extracts will, in the not distant future, largely replace alcohol as so generally prescribed by physicians and put out by proprietary or "patent medicine" manufacturers, as being more efficient and entirely free from the serious objection of making indigestion when used in lingering or chronic cases, where a somewhat protected use of medicine is necessary no matter how good, well adapted to the case it may be in order to obtain permanent results.

Dr. Pierce's When the "Favorite Prescription" is not quite laxative enough, as in obstinate constipation, the little pleasant, sugar-coated "Pellets" should be taken to aid the "Prescription." One or two for a laxative, two to four for a cathartic. They alone have been known to cure many bad cases of stomach trouble, dyspepsia and indigestion. They act on the liver and regulate the bowels. Put up in glass vials, corked, therefore, always fresh and reliable.

PRINT ON BLACK PAPER.

This May Be Solution of Newspaper Troubles, Say Paper Manufacturers.

Appleton, Wis., May 8.—Wisconsin manufacturers of print paper yesterday put forth a proposition which, if adopted, will revolutionize the print paper industry of the country and the newspaper industry as well. They propose that newspapers in the future be printed on black instead of white paper, thus bringing about a saving of millions of dollars annually in pulp wood, assisting in the preservation of forests and reducing the price of paper to about one-half the present price. Black paper can be made of old newspapers and almost any fibrous stock, while the white paper requires spruce and hemlock wood. Wisconsin paper manufacturers intend bringing the matter before the eastern manufacturers, and if possible, bring about a central action with the publishers of the country.

The paper manufacturers are of the opinion that for the present the colored supplements will have to be printed on white paper. Some of them say, however, that this would be the only section of the modern paper that would have to use white paper, and the consequent saving would be great. Others hold that the white silhouette effect for comic and illustrations would have the same effect as the colored plates.

The latter form of illustration is even now considered high, and has been used extensively by foreign publications. It is also considered a novel and impressive form of advertising, even in this country. As to the effect on the eye, the advocates of the proposition say that the black background will be more resting than the present glare from white paper.

The Weather.

FOR KENTUCKY—Fair Thursday except probable showers in extreme west portion.

Chairman McQuown, has called a meeting of the Democratic State Executive committee to be held in Frankfort May 19 to fix a time and place for holding a State Convention.

Wright Brothers, of Dayton, O., made a new record at Manteo, N. C.
Monday by their flying machine, which made a successful flight of 23 miles, flying 20 feet from the ground. A second flight of more than two miles was made.

Georgia will have a primary election June 4 with Smith and Brown contending candidates for Governor.
Hoke Smith, the present Governor, is advocating the disfranchisement of negroes and the approval of the state prohibition law passed by the last legislature. He is opposed by Joe Brown, who favors prohibition but is silent on the race question and is attacking Gov. Smith's record and bets are even that Brown will win.

It must not be supposed that the night rider is altogether without friends. In Scott county there is talk of indicting Gov. Willson; in Trigg county the soldiers are to be shot if they make any more arrests;
in Bracken county there is a report that Col. Lillard's troops are about to be put in jail, while in Lincoln county the grand jury indicted the witnesses who testified against the thirty or forty alleged night riders under bond.

The gubernatorial contest in Tennessee between Carmack and Patterson is the greatest political fight in the South for a generation. Their joint debates are stirring the State as it was never stirred before and personalities have almost precipitated trouble at several places. They will speak in Clarksville May 22 and many Hopkinsville people will go over to hear them. Both aspirants have ardent admirers here.

The Hollowell damage suit at Paducah went to the jury Tuesday night after four hours of argument.
W. H. Yost and Ward Headley spoke for the defendants and Judge DuRelle and Jno. G. Miller for the prosecution. The defense was the same as before, a series of alibis.
Judge Evans commented at length on the remarkable memories of the witnesses who testified for the defense in the effort to establish alibis for the twenty-eight defendants.

In sending troops to Bracken county without any request being made by the county authorities, Gov.
Cox acted on numerous appeals from citizens of the county who said they were denied protection by the county authorities. They said many outrages had been committed that had never found their way into the public prints. The Governor does not believe the negligence of county officials should be allowed to endanger the lives and property of citizens and sent the soldiers on complaints that the county was in a condition of lawlessness.

One of the soldiers in Bracken county fired his gun on a public highway and Lewis Rice appeared before county Judge Bradford and swore out a warrant charging the soldier with disorderly conduct.
Deputy Sheriff Robertson presented the warrant to Lieut. Bell who replied that the soldier, Private Green, whose gun was accidentally discharged, was under arrest in a military investigation. Lieut. Bell asked for instructions from Frankfort and resumed his march without permitting Green to be arrested.
The County Attorney and County Judge are threatening to have the soldiers indicted.

Music Festival One Week Off

In less than one week the May Music Festival, about which so much has been said and written during the past few weeks, will be on in full blast, and from all indications music lovers from all over this part of Kentucky and Tennessee will be here to enjoy this unparalleled opportunity to hear Creator and his band, the vocal and instrumental soloists, the adult and children's choruses, etc. Everything is rapidly being gotten into final shape for the festival and when the first performance is given next Tuesday night nothing will have been left undone which will contribute to the complete success of the event in every particular. Both the L. & N. and I. C. railroads have granted a rate of one and one-third fare, plus 25 cents, for the round trip.

Ever since the festival was announced it looks as if every individual citizen has appointed himself a committee of one to boost it. In this respect it had a good backing in this regard in the members of the Elks Lodge and the Tabernacle Management, and they have worked with heart and soul, but private citizens have entered almost as zealously into the work and have done much good in giving publicity to the festival. In the surrounding section the interest is almost as great as it is right here in Hopkinsville and large numbers of people are expected from every town within a radius of fifty miles, while relatives and friends from a distance will make it convenient to visit here during the gala occasion.

The programs for the festival are now being printed and a glance over it shows that every taste will be appealed to by the music given at the five performances. The old and familiar, but none the less enjoyable, songs and airs which date back to our grandfathers, time will be given the place of honor and will feature in nearly every performance. On the other hand the very latest rag time, not forgetting the Merry Widow Waltz and other popular music, and the most successful and difficult grand opera numbers will be given in delightfully broken doses. In fact when one attends the Music Festival he may expect anything from "Home, Sweet Home," or the "Merry Widow" to Parsifal or the "Damnation of Faust." Everybody therefore can go with the assurance that they will be pleased by the music rendered.

Mrs. Hetty Green has received a ening death unless she gives up she would rather die than separate herself from that much money.

Justice Dickley, of the Supreme Court at Brooklyn, N. Y., has handed down a decision requiring Osteo-

A young woman giving her name ed with larceny. She was at the was on her way to Washington to kill President Roosevelt.

This will be a great convention week in Washington. In addition to the meetings of the Governors of States, the Drainage Congress will be in session and also the members of the American Waterworks Association. At the latter, Vice President Fairbanks will be the central
address the Drainage Congress. Gov.
Willson is attending the Governors' conference.

Still another new move was made in the shrievalty court tangle Mon-

Mr. Renshaw's attorneys pursued the same plan, applying to the Court

but it was postponed until May 21st.

OTHER REMARKABLE CURES.

Mr. Jacob L. Davis, Galena, Boone county, Mo., writes: "I have been in bad health for thirty-seven years, and after taking twelve bottles of your Peru-na am cured." Mr. A. E. Kidd, well-known architect, 547 Jefferson Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I have had catarrh over half of my life. I tried nearly every catarrh remedy advertised, beside a great many physicians' treatments, all of which failed. I had heard and read of Peru-na and decided to try it. I have taken seven bottles of it and weigh 175 pounds."

A SINCERE RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. D. C. Prosser, R. F. D. No. 2, Shelby, Oceana Co., Mich., writes: "Two years ago I was badly afflicted with catarrh of the stomach. I had had a run of typhoid fever, was very depleted. I could find nothing I could eat without causing distress and poor stomach. Finally I came to the conclusion that I had catarrh of the stomach and seeing Peru-na advertised, began to take it. It helped me soon, and after taking three or four bottles I was entirely cured of stomach trouble, and can now eat anything."

Health Giving Waters, Excellent New Hotel and Forest Trees.

The Salubria Springs Hotel, which was erected last year too late for the season of 1907, is to be opened for business June 1, with T. D. Ackerman, the Pembroke Hotel man, in charge. His son, Bob Ackerman, will be the clerk at the Salubria Hotel. The furniture is now being put in place and the forty rooms will soon be ready for the guests. The hotel has large verandas on both sides of the building and has well shaded grounds, while the famous medicinal springs furnish health giving waters. The resort is a short distance from Pembroke, about eight miles from Hopkinsville, on the L. & N. Railroad. The railroad will be asked to establish a station at the hotel. The Kentuckian extends its best wishes to the new enterprise and bespeaks for the hotel a liberal patronage from Hopkinsville people.

Revival Will Close on To-morrow Night.

REVIVAL PROGRAM

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

3 p. m. Preaching and Song Service.

4 p. m. Baptismal Service.

7:30 p. m. Preaching and Song Service.

The great revival at the Ninth Street Church of Christ will close tomorrow night. The conclusion of these meetings will put a finish to one of the most remarkable seasons of spiritual refreshing which the town has experienced within a dozen years. Men and women, youths and maidens and little children have bowed before the might of the Gospel as it has been preached and sung for a space of eleven days until seventy-two persons have presented themselves for membership in the Ninth Street Christian church alone. It has been the aim and trust of the leaders of the church to be of use to all the churches and the whole community. It is believed that their ambition in this regard has been met in some fair degree.

The remaining two days of the meetings are expected to be of the greatest interest. Immense audiences have greeted the Evangelists during this week, even longer hours than those of last week. The preaching of Mr. Sellers grows more practical, more direct, more solemnly earnest as the end of meetings approaches. Prof. Sturgis is singing with sweetness and power again, his disability on account of a severe cold having been cured. The chorus is longer and more effective each day.

BRIDAL TOUR TO HAVANA

Elegant Home Wedding of Mr. Eckles and Miss Flack.

LOVELY DECORATIONS.

Many Out-of-Town Friends Attended the Happy Event.

Seldom has Hopkinsville seen a prettier home wedding than that of Miss Patty Flack Tuesday evening to Mr. Alfred H. Eckles. The home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Flack, was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the wedding was attended by a limited number of local relatives and close friends and many relatives of the contracting parties from other cities.

There were two couples of attendants, Miss Nell Tandy and Mr. Lawson Flack and Miss Mary Tandy and Mr. Fred Jackson. These were followed by Miss Agnes Flack, the bride's younger sister, as Maid of Honor.

The bride and groom entered the parlor to the sweet strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by the skillful hands of Miss Addie Green. During the wedding ceremony the soft strains of "The Evening Star" fell upon the ear.

The ceremony was pronounced by Rev. Millard A. Jenkins with a ring, being appropriate and impressive.

Following the marriage, the young couple were heavily congratulated by their friends, and refreshments were served. At 11:50 Mr. and Mrs. Eckles took the L. & N. train for Florida and will go to Cuba for a tour of three or four weeks. Upon their return about June 15th they will be at home at Mr. E. M. Flack's for the summer.

The cutting of the wedding cake was a pleasant feature of the evening. Miss Nell Tandy cut the ring. Miss Agnes Flack the dime and Miss Annie Forbes the darning needle.

Among the out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Baylor Hickman and daughter, Miss Helen, of Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Webb, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McMurtry, Miss Nell Jackson, Mr. Ed Eckles and Mr. Milt Eckles, of Springfield, Tenn.; Mrs. Jennie Mathews, Mrs. Nell Taylor and son and Miss Mamie Davis of Louisville.

Mr. Eckles is a prominent young business man, being cashier of the Forbes Manufacturing Co., and interested in a number of local enterprises. He is a young man of the highest character and business standing and is popular and influential. His bride is attractive in person and in character. She is the third of a quartette of beautiful sisters and has been a reigning belle since her debut a few seasons ago.

The happy couple have the good wishes of a host of friends.

PATROLLING RIVER FRONT.

Ohio and Kentucky Joining Forces to Suppress Night Riders.

MORE TROOPS OUT.

Acting Governor Cox Sends Them Into His Home County.

Maysville, Ky., May 13.—Companies A and C, Second Regiment, Kentucky State Guards, arrived here yesterday morning over the L. & N. and left for Dover, Mason county and Augusta, Bracken county. They were in charge of Acting Captain Roger W. Jones, of Lexington, and Capt. Norman, of Frankfort.

The soldiers will act in conjunction with the Ohio State Guards on the opposite side of the river and will patrol the river front and back through Mason and Bracken counties. It is thought Acting Gov. Cox was instrumental in having the soldiers sent here. They have a large amount of ammunition with them.

KNOWS THE LEADER.

Witness Who Made Wholesale Turn-up on Hot Trail.

Paducah, Ky., May 13.—That three lodges of night riders have been installed in McCracken county, and that it was planned to attempt an attack on Paducah next fall, throwing a sufficient number of men across the Tennessee River into Calloway county the day before the attack to make the invading force overwhelming, was the startling information given out by Sanford L. Hall, the spy on the night riders, who says he joined the organization to secure information. Mayfield also was to have been taken, Hall said. The work of organization and agitation in the Calloway county prosecutions, was the preliminary to overrunning the Purchase as the raiders have overrun Caldwell, Trigg, Christian, Crittenden and Lyon counties.

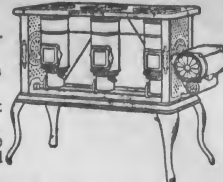

The authorities have the names of many men in the night rider organization, and the founder and commander-in-chief, a native of Caldwell county, is well known to the State authorities, if Hall's information is correct.

In Caldwell, Trigg and Lyon counties night rider lodges meet at school houses. In Calloway county they used the lodge rooms of a secret order. The night rider lodges east of the river are named for the schools where they meet. Three lodges compose a "Silent Brigade," with a colonel in command. When a raid is planned men are sent into the town a few days ahead, and if all is well the night of the raid the spies meet the main body with a white flag.

The force is divided into as many squads as there are points to be guarded, according to the plan of the spies, and over each squad is a leader. The white scarf is worn over the right shoulder and the leaders wear them crossed in front.

Hall said men rode from Trigg and Lyon counties, across Trigg and part of Christian to take part in the Hopkinsville raid. He said they could ride part of the way in daylight in their night rider regalia, as every man, woman and child they would pass would be a night rider sympathizer.

RAID PREVENTED

By the Soldiers in Hopkins County.

Earlington, Ky., May 11.—The members of the local military company, under the command of Major Albrecht, of Middleboro, prevented a night rider raid in this county between St. Charles and Ilay last night. Word was received here that a raid was contemplated and Major Albrecht called out a detachment of the Earlington militia and started out in the direction in which it was said that the raid was planned.

Evidently, however, the night riders got wind of the troops' presence, for the raid failed to materialize, although a band of masked men was seen by several persons. The raiders managed to keep out of the way of the troops and no arrests were made.

WARRANTS ISSUED.

Men Who Were Whipped Accuse Neighbors.

Cadiz, Ky., May 11.—Warrants for sixteen alleged night riders were sworn out here today by J. D. Cossey and C. S. Colson, who live between the rivers in Trigg county and who say they were whipped by bands of masked men. Cossey and Colson came here today from Golden Pond with Gen. Williams and a detail of six soldiers. Of the men, accused eleven live in Trigg county and five in Lyon county.

The sheriff telephoned the sheriff of Lyon county tonight and asked him to arrest the Lyon county men, and Deputy Sheriff Davis will leave here in the morning to round up the Trigg county men.

Cossey, in his affidavit, says that several weeks ago he was visited by a band of twenty-five men who, after taking him out, invited him to join the night riders. When he declined, the leader told him he owned too much land, and ordered twenty-five lashes laid on.

Colson says the night riders told him they were punishing him because he was not treating his wife right. The examining trials will be held Saturday.

Scraped Bod In Garden.

Carlisle, Ky., May 12.—On going to his garden, Thomas Moffett, a prominent farmer, who resides in this county, near the Fleming line, is said to have found that a small tobacco bed, which he had in the garden, had been destroyed. On looking further it was discovered that his lettuce and radish beds had also been destroyed, although no one was seen.

about the premises of Mr. Moffett during the night, the destruction of the beds is believed to have been the work of "night riders." So far as known nothing else either on the place of Mr. Moffett or elsewhere in the neighborhood was molested.

It is said that Mr. Moffett had sown the small bed for tobacco plants with which he intended to raise a small patch of tobacco for home use.

Sophy of Kravonia.

By ANTHONY HOPE.
Author of "The Prisoner of Zenda."
Copyright, 1906, Anthony Hope Hawkins.

In vain will the readers of this tale of romantic love and brilliant daring search the maps of the world for the picturesque land of Kravonia, wherein lovely, fascinating Sophy and her mysterious Red Star played their parts. This much we may tell him before he embarks on his voyage to Kravonia. But we may assure him that when he reluctantly parts with Sophy, sometime scullery maid of Morpington, Essex, England, later spirit-sailor-maid of Paris, France, and still later of high rank in Slavia and Valenti, in Kravonia, the country of her adoption will be to him, like Zenda and Graustark, more real than are many of the smaller, actual kingdoms of the earth. Sad and tragic in some of its aspects is the love story of Sophy of Kravonia, but its pathos is so lightened by devoted loyalty, hardly bravery and tender, self-sacrificing affection that at the end the reader will surely feel in telling her not been unworthy of the master hand of its famous chronicler.

Chapter Four

THE scene is at Haselby, Lord Dunstanbury's Essex seat. His lordship is sitting at the top of his breakfast table.

"I say, Cousin Meg, old Brownlow's got a deuced pretty kitchen maid."

"There you go! There you go! Just like your father and your grandfather and all of them! If the English people had any spirit they'd have swept the Dunstanburies and all the wicked Whigs into the sea long ago."

"Before you could turn around they'd have bought it up, inclosed it and won an election by opening it to ships at a small fee on Sundays," said Mr. Pinder.

"Why are Whigs worse than Tories?" inquired Mr. Pikes, with an air of patient inquiry.

"The will of heaven, I suppose," smiled Lady Margaret Duddington.

"To display divine omnipotence in that line," suggested Mr. Pinder.

"A deuced pretty girl!" said Dunstanbury in reflective tones. He was doing his best to reproduce the impression he had received at Morpington hall, but obviously with no great success.

"On some pretext, frivolous though it be, let us drive over and see this miracle," Pinder suggested. "How could we better employ this last day of our visit? You'll drive us over, Percival?"

"No, thank you, Mr. Pinder," said the young man, resolute in wisdom. "I'll send you over if you like."

"I'll come with you," said Pikes. "But how account for ourselves? Old Brownlow is unknown to us."

"If Percival had been going I'd have had nothing to do with it, but I don't mind taking you two old allies," said Lady Margaret.

"I wanted to pay a call on Elizabeth Brownlow anyhow. We were at school together once. But I won't guarantee you a sight of the kitchen maid."

"It's a pretty drive for this part of the country," observed Dunstanbury.

"It may well become your favorite road," smiled Mr. Pinder benevolently.

"And since Lady Meg goes with us, it's already ours," added Mr. Pikes gallantly.

So they used to go on for hours at a time, as Dunstanbury has declared, both at Haselby when they were there and at Lady Meg's house in Berkeley square, where they almost always were. They were pleasant enough, considering themselves politicians—Pikes a Whig, twenty years behind date; Pinder, a Tory, 200. It was all an affection, assumed for the purpose, but with the very doubtful result of amusing Lady Meg. To Dunstanbury the two old wags—for wags of the sea of society they were for all that each had a sufficient income to his name and a respectable life behind him—were sheerly tiresome, and there seems little ground to differ from his opinion. But they were old family friends, and he endured with his usual gracelessness.

Their patroness—they would hardly have called her that—was a more notable person. Lady generosity and Sophy always spoke of her by that style, and we may take the same liberty—was only child of the great Earl of Dunstanbury. The little and estates passed to his grandnephew, but half a million or so of pounds came to her.

The air of the household was stormy that day at Morpington—an incentive to the expedition, not a deterrent, for Lady Meg had she known it. Sophy was in sore disgrace—accused, tried and convicted of insubordination and unseemly demeanor toward Mrs. Smilker. The truth seems to be that this good woman (best her soul). She has a neat tombstone in Morpington churchyard loved, like many another good creature, good she sometimes a trifle too well, and the orders she gave when she had been plentiful did not always consort with her less mellow inclinations. In no vulgar directness, but with a sarcasm which Mrs. Smilker felt without understanding, Sophy would point out these inconsistencies. Answered and humiliated, fearful, too, perhaps that her subordinate would let the secret out, Mrs. Smilker made haste to have the first word with the powers, and against the word of the cook the word of the cook maid weighed as naught. After smaller troubles of this origin there had come a sort of crisis today. The longest of long lectures had been read to Sophy by mistress and repeated, slightly condensed, by master, then she was sent away to think it over. An object of apology to outraged Mrs. Smilker must be forthcoming or banishment was the decree. Informed of this ultimatum, Sophy went out and hung about the avenue, hoping for Julia to appear.

Soon Julia came and heard the story. She had indignation in readiness and, what was more to the purpose, a plan. Soon Sophy's eyes grew bright.

Into this storm-tossed house came Lady Meg and her spaniels. This unkind name, derived at first from the size and shape of Mr. Pinder's ears—were large and hung over at the top—had been stretched to include Mr. Pikes also, with small loss of propriety. Both gentlemen were of low stature, plump of figure, hairy on the face; both followed obediently at the heels of commanding Lady Meg. The amenities of the luncheon table opened hearts. Very soon the tale of Sophy's misdeeds was revealed. Luckily and unavailingly if Sophy's heinous fault were to appear in its true measure the tally of the Brownlows' benevolence was reckoned. But Mrs. Brownlow won small comfort from Lady Meg. She got a stiff touch of the truth.

"Run in and out of the drawing room," she said. "Did she? The truth be liked, you've spoiled her, and now you're angry with her for being spoiled."

"What is she now, Mrs. Brownlow?" asked Pinder, with a sly intention. Was this Percival's deuced pretty girl?

"She works in the kitchen, Mr. Pinder."

"The girl!" his eyes signaled to Mr. Pikes. "Let Lady Meg see her," he urged insistently. "She has a wonderful way with girls."

"I don't want to see her, and I know your game, Pinder," said Lady Meg.

"I'm afraid she must go," sighed Mrs. Brownlow. Her husband said, more robustly, that such an event would be a good riddance—a saying repeated with the rest of the conversation, by the latter one William Byles, still living, to the gratified ears of Mrs. Smilker in the kitchen.

"But I'm not easy about her future. She's an odd child, and looks it."

"Pretty?" This from Mr. Pinder.

"Well, I don't know. Striking looking, you'd rather say perhaps, Mr. Pinder."

"Let her go her own way. We've talked quite enough about her," Lady Meg sounded, decisive and not a little bored.

"And then," Mrs. Brownlow made bold to go on for a moment, "such a funny mark! Many people wouldn't like it, I'm sure."

Lady Meg turned sharply on her. "Mark?"

"What do you mean?"

"A mark on her face, you know. A round red mark on the forehead."

"Big as a threepenny coin, bit, pretty nearly," said Smilker, the squire.

"Where?"

"On her cheek."

"Where is the girl?" asked Lady Meg. Her whole demeanor had changed, her bored air had vanished. "She seemed fair enough," Mr. Byles reported. Then she turned to the said Byles: "Find out where that girl is, and let me know. Don't tell her anything about it. I'll go to her."

"But let me send for her!" began the squire courteously.

"No; give me my own way. I don't want her frightened."

The squire gave the orders she desired, and the last Mr. Byles heard as he left the room was from Lady Meg: "Marks like that always mean something—eh, Pinder?"

No doubt Mr. Pinder agreed, but his reply is lost.

The girls in the avenue had made their plan. Sophy would not bow her head to Mrs. Smilker nor longer at the bread of benevolence embittered by servitude. She would go with Julia. She, too, would tread the boards if only she could get her feet on them. And when did any girl seriously doubt her ability to do that? The pair were gay and laughing when suddenly through the gate came Lady Meg and the spaniels, Lady Meg ahead as usual and with a purposeful air.

"Who are they?" cried Sophy.

Haselby is but two miles from Morpington. Julia had been over to see the big house and had sighted Lady Meg in the garden.

"It's Lady Margaret Piddington," she whispered, rather in a fright. There was time for no more. Lady Meg was upon them. Sophy was identified by her dress, and to Lady Meg's devouring eyes, by the mark.

"You're the girl who's been behaving so badly?" she said.

Seeing no profit in arguing the merits, Sophy answered "Yes."

At this point Julia observed one old gentleman nudge the other and whisper something. It is morally certain that Pindar whispered to Pikes, "Percival's girl."

"You seem to like your own way. What are you going to do—say you're sorry?"

"No. I'm not sorry. I'm going away."

"Come here, girl. Let me look at you."

Sophy obeyed, walking up to Lady Meg and fixing her eyes on her face. She was interested, not frightened, as it seemed. Lady Meg looked long at her.

"Going away? Where to?"

Julia spoke up. "She's coming with me, please, Lady Margaret."

"What a little frightened."

"Who are you?"

"Julia Robinson. My mother lives there."

"Lord help you!" remarked Lady Meg disconcertingly.

"Not at all!" protested Julia, her meaning plain, her expression of it faulty. "And I'm going to help her to get an engagement. We're friends."

"What's she going to do with that on the stage?" Lady Meg's forefinger almost touched the mark.

"Oh, that's all right, Lady Margaret. Just a little cold cream and powder."

"Nasty stuff!" said Lady Meg.

A pause followed. Lady Meg still studying Sophy's face. The two, without turning around, she made a remark which obviously addressed to the gentlemen behind her:

"I expect this is Percival's young person."

"Without a doubt," said Pikes.

"And Percival was right about her, too," said Pindar.

"Think so? I ain't sure yet," said Lady Meg. "And at any rate I don't care twopence about that. But!"

A long pause marked a renewed scrutiny. "Your name's Sophy, isn't it?"

"Yes," Sophy hesitated, then forced out the words, "Sophy Grouch."

"Grouch?"

"I said Grouch."

"Humph! Well, Sophy, don't go on the stage. It's a poor affair, the stage, begging Miss Julia's pardon. I'm sure she'll do admirably at it. But a poor affair it is. There's not much to be said for the real thing, but it's a deal better than the stage, Sophy."

"The real thing?" Julia saw Sophy's eyes grow thoughtful.

"The world—places—London—Paris—men and women—Lord help them! Come with me, and I'll show you all that."

"What shall I do if I come with you?"

"Do! Eat and drink and waste time and money, like the rest of us. Eh, Pindar?"

"Of course," said Mr. Pindar, with a placid smile.

"I shan't be a servant again?"

"Everybody in my house is a slave, I'm told, but you won't be more of a slave than the rest."

"Will you have me taught?"

Lady Meg looked hard at her. For the first time she smiled, rather grimly.

"Yes, I'll have you taught, and I'll give you the queen of England and, if you behave yourself, the emperor of the French—Lord help him!"

"Not unless she behaves herself!" murmured Mr. Pindar.

"Hold your tongue, Pindar! Now, then, what do you say? No, wait a minute. I want you to understand it properly."

She became silent for a moment. Julia was thinking her a very rude woman; but, since Pindar did not mind, who need?

Lady Meg resumed. "I won't make an illustration of you—I mean I won't be bound to you, and you shan't be bound to me. You'll stay with me as long as you like or as long as I like, as the case may be. If I want to go out your visiting card—yes, you'll have one—in an envelope and send it to me. And if I want you to go I'll put a hundred pound note in an envelope and send it to you, upon which you'll go and no reasons given."

"It sounds all right," said Sophy.

"Did you always have that mark on your cheek?"

"Yes, always. Father told me so."

"Well, will you come?"

Sophy was torn. The stage was very attractive, and the love she had for Julia Robinson held her as though by a cord. But was the stage a poor thing? Was that mysterious real thing better? Though even of that this strange woman spoke scornfully. Already there came into her head some underground channel of understanding between her, for Sophy knew that Lady Meg was more than interested in her—that she was to be studied about her, and Lady Meg, in her turn, was to be played a good card when she danced before Sophy's eyes the queen of England and the emperor of the French, both of them cases that astounded "Lord help him!" to damp an over-enthusiasm.

"Let me speak to Julia," said Sophy. Lady Meg nodded. The girls linked arms and walked apart. Pindar came to Lady Meg's elbow.

"Another thing," said he in a low voice. "I was just taking around the view with a kind of vacant contentment."

"Yes," she said. "I'll move. I know what you said. You said, 'You did look fit!'"

"Never on my life, my lady!" They seemed more friends now than patrons and client. Few saw them thus, but Pindar told Dunstanbury, and the old gentleman was no liar.

"Give me more!" she whispered, plainly excited. "That mark must mean something. It may open a way."

"Well, be it asked, smiling."

"It must for me. It may for me."

"A way where?"

"To knowledge—knowledge of the unknown. They may speak through her!"

"Lady Meg! Lady Meg! And if they don't, the hundred pound note! It's very cruel."

"Who knows—who knows, Pindar? Fate has her ways."

He shrugged his shoulders and smiled. "Not half as amusing as your ladyship's!"

Sophy, twenty yards off, flung her arms around Julia. The embrace was long. It spoke farewell. Lady Meg's eyes brightened. "She's coming with me," she said. Pindar shrugged his shoulders again and fell back to heel.

Sophy walked briskly up.

"I'll come, my lady," she said.

"Good! Tomorrow afternoon—to London. Mrs. Brownlow has the address, Goodby!" she turned abruptly on her heel and marched off, her retinue following.

Julia came to Sophy.

"We can write," she said. "And she's right. You must be for the real thing, Sophy!"

"My dear, my dear!" murmured Sophy, half in tears. "Yes, we must write." She drew back and stood erect. "It's all very dark," she said, "but I like it. London—and Paris! On the Seine! Old lessons came back with new import now!"

"The emperor of the French!" Julia mocked, with tears in her eyes.

A sudden thought occurred to Sophy. "What did she mean by 'Percival's young person'?"

"Julia gave a little cry. 'Lord Dunstanbury?' Yes. You've seen him again?"

"I knew out the story. It made the sorrow of parting half forgotten."

"You owe this to him, then? How romantic!" was Actress Julia's conclusion.

In part a true one, no doubt. But Sophy, looking deeper, fingered the red star. She had tracked the magnet of Lady Meg's regard, the point of her interest, the pivot of decision for that mind of whines.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

Do Not Endanger Life

When a Cure May Be Had

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in.

Leslie K. Hickman, living on Arch street, Madisonville, Ky., says: "I do not hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. I tested their merits about three months ago and the results could have been more satisfactory. I had been through the small of my back directly over the kidneys which caused me considerable annoyance. Stopping or straightening caused sharp twinges to catch me in the kidneys. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box. I noticed a decided improvement from the use of this box, and continued taking them, using a second box, completely curing me. I have every confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills and cheerfully give them my recommendation."

A Card.

It has come to my notice that I am associated with Mr. James L. Long. Such report is not true. I have opened an office strictly on my own footing, not being associated with any individual, firm, or corporation. I have over ten years of practical experience contracting and building, in the operation of a retail lumber business, over eight years of practical experience in Architectural Drafting. I am open for a clean cut business proposition. I am in a position to serve my clients with a knowledge of the business, with economy, with honesty and fairness to both owner and contractor.

Call and let's talk the matter over.
Respectfully,
T. J. Hawkins, Architect,

CEMETERY DRIVEWAY

Is Being Completed This Week and Will Soon Be Ready to Use.

The driveway around the inside boundaries of Riverside Cemetery is being finished this week and will soon be ready for use. From the bridge entrance the drive runs along the river bank for more than 700 yards, turns north and parallels the Louisville & Nashville railroad for 400 yards, passing east of the cottage purchased two years ago and then turns westward 300 yards to the improved driveway on the top of the hill in the new cemetery. This makes 1400 yards from the gate to the cemetery proper and from that point to the northern gate is about 400 yards more, making the main driveway from one gate to the other more than a mile in length. On the northern side there is a pond filled with willows which will be dredged out and deepened and made into a pretty little lake covering nearly an acre. The unplatted grounds heretofore used for pasture, are being cultivated this season in corn, and a drive around the boulevard, through these cornfields, will be like a trip to the country.
